Figures In New Israeli Political Drama

LEFT: The Lubavitch Rebbe, Menachem M. Schneersohn; Centre: Rabbi Dr. Joseph B. Soloveitchik. Both are reported invited to visit Israel in order to help solve the religious crisis. Right: Moshe Shapira, Mizrachi (NRP) leader who told The Canadian Jewish News, the crisis is serious.

POLITICAL CRISIS IN ISRAEL

ESHKOL REGIME IN PERIL

ARAB PRO-ISRAEL MOVE REPORTED

Tel Aviv, (JCNS) During a closed meeting of the Lebanese Parliament last week, several deputies called for recognition of Israel, according to a report in "Ma'ariv".

They also urged the adoption of a plan for joint Israel-Arab water development scheme and measures to solve the refugee problem.

The leading proponent of these measures was named by the Israeli newspapers as Albert Mukheiber. Christian deputy, Habibi Mutran, was quoted as saying that suggestions that the waters of the Hasbani river should be diverted away from the River Jordan into the Lebanon were not serious. "Who would defend Lebanon if Israel launched an attack on the country?" he asked.

SHAPIRA STATES: NRP WILL QUIT COALITION CABINET

By AARON SARFATI
(CJN Correspondent)

JERUSALEM (Special). — Premier Levi Eshkol of Israel has spent the last few days in intensive negotiations with his coalition partners in order to prevent the collapse of the present government.

Moshe Shapira, titular head of the National Religious Party and Minister of Interior, has brought out into the open the internal crisis which plagued the Israeli government coalition during the past weeks. Last Friday, Mr. Shapira told the Ha'aretz that, unless the Mapai (the dominant party in the coalition) refrains from changing the status quo on the relationship between religion and state in Israel, his party will leave the government and call for new elections this year.

(The present Israeli government is constituted of the following political parties: Mapai, largest minority party in Israel; the National Religious Party; Achdut Ha-avodah. These parties control a slight majority in the Knesset.)

The Canadian Jewish News learned exclusively that the government of Israel has invited officially America's two top religious leaders, the Lubavitcher Rebbe, Rabbi Menachem M. Schneersohn, and Dr. Joseph B. Soloveitchick of Boston, to visit Israel in order that they may be convinced that the religious groups have no case against the policy of the present government. At this moment it still is not clear whether the two rabbis have accepted the invitation.

The National Religious Party has opened the crisis because of Mapai's decision to add the leftist Mapam party, which is overtly atheistic, to the present coalition.

In an exclusive interview, Mr. Shapira also told The Canadian Jewish News that if an enlargement of the coalition is on the agenda, the present international crisis involving Israel commands a national government and not a leftist dominated cabinet. Upon a question of this reporter, whether his party is referring to the Liberals and the Agudat Israel only, he answered candidly: "Who permits us to eliminate Herut from the list of constructive parties that should be included in the national government? It is true that today Herut (largest opposition party) is leading the most outspoken opposition, but this can be changed if the government is changed."

The Canadian Jewish News also learned that the National Religious Party decided in a caucus meeting to definitely resign from the government should Mapam be the only group added to the coalition.

Mapai circles told the correspondent they doubt very much whether the National Religious Party actually will resign.

QUEBEC FRENCH & MONTREAL JEWS

Le Devoir Hails The Canadian Jewish News Editorial On Jewish Schools In French Canada

French public opinion has reacted promptly and with sympathetic interest to a recent editorial in The Canadian Jewish News, discussing the educational problem of French-speaking Jewish children in Quebec.

In its issue of December 27th last, The Canadian Jewish News editorially called upon the government of Quebec and the Jewish community to find ways and means to establish Jewish schools there, where the language of instruction should be French and the contents, Jewish. The French press in general supports this suggestion of The Canadian Jewish News.

In one of the recent issues of Le Devoir (of which M. Laurendeau, co-chairman of the Royal Commission of Bi-Culturalism, is editor-in-chief), Jean-Marc Leger (who signs his articles by the initials, JML), one of the outstanding French editorial writers in this country, endorses completely the editorial viewpoint of The Canadian Jewish News. Le Devoir agrees that "this is a problem which must be resolved urgently." Also it notes, "our school system creates a 'drama' for thousands of French-speaking Jews in Quebec."

Le Devoir, which is the most influential French newspaper in Canada, states too that this problem in Quebec—the creation of Jewish schools with French the language of instruction—is a matter of justice for Sephardim and other French-speaking Jews in Canada.

The editorial in The Canadian Jewish News has been hailed by many Sephardim, and others interested in the integration of the Jewish community into the culture of Quebec, as a courageous intervention on the part of our newspaper. Many readers have asked us to continue to demand action on the part of the Jewish Congress to help solve this problem.

It has also been pointed out that the problem actually should be tackled by the government of Quebec. Such action would prove that the present trend for elevating the status of French culture in that province would not eliminate the rights of religious minorities who are Quebecois by language but Catholics, Protestants or Jews by religious tradition.

MUNKACS RABBI GETS SIX YEARS FROM SOVIET COURT

LONDON (JCNS) — Sixteen Jews have been sentenced to various terms of imprisonment following trials in the former Czechoslovak, now Ukrainian city of Uzhgorod.

One of them, B. Berger, was identified by the newspaper, "Zazrapatskaya Pravda", as the former rabbi of Munkacs. He was given six years. Another, B. Friedman, was described as "somebody who wanted to go to Israel." He received twelve years.

The trials and the sentences were reported by "Zazrapatskaya Pravda." The only accused named were Jews. All were charged with participation in alleged economic crimes involving speculation in foreign currency. Eight days before the sentences were announced the newspaper published an article replete with antisemitic innuendo.

In the first of the Uzhgorod trials eleven Jews were found guilty and sentenced. They were: B. Friedman (twelve years); G. Jokovitz (8); A. Waisewsky (8); G. Kelin (7); B. Berger (6); M. Leibowitz (6); Schwartz (5); Angerman (5); S. Taggel (3); E. Klein (3); and Berkovitz (3).

In the second trial, five Jews were sentenced: G. Bem (12 years), Kaufman (6) and Azerman, Klein, Marmelstein (no term given).

DEATH SENTENCE OF "RABBI" REPEALED

LONDON (JCNS) — Benjamin Gavrilov, one of three men sentenced to death last August by the Stavropol Territorial Court on various charges of currency speculation, has had his sentence commuted to 15 years deprivation of liberty on appeal to the Supreme Court of the Russian Soviet.

Announcing his sentence last year, the Soviet press described Gavrilov as a "rabbi" and gave his first name as Boris.

Now, however, Novosty, an official Soviet news agency, has stated that Gavrilov "never had an ecclesiastical title" and its star writer on Jewish themes, Samuil Rozin, has alleged that the title "rabbi" was appended to Gavrilov's name so that he could be used "for diverse anti-Soviet cock-and-bull stories.

TORONTO UJA MISSION APPOINTED

Toronto's 7th United Jewish Appeal Study Mission to Europe and Israel will leave on Sunday, February 9, it was announced this week by Theodore D. Richmond, general chairman of the 1964 UJA campaign. Mr. Richmond will act as leader of the Mission.

The purpose of the Mission will be to give a number of Torontonians who will be taking an active part in the 1964 campaign an opportunity to see for themselves some of the overseas needs that will be filled by proceeds of the drive. Upon their return Study Mission members will report their findings to a public rally scheduled for March 9.

The Mission will spend two days in Paris, on Feb. 10 and 11, and another day, February 12, in Rome, before arriving in Israel on Thursday, February 13. For the ensuing ten days the Mission will be on the go throughout Israel.

In Paris, Mission members will meet with officials of the Joint Distribution Committee to hear reports of JDC operations in France. (The Joint Distribution Committee receives funds from the United Jewish Appeal through United Jewish Relief Agencies.) They also will visit parts of the city in which refugees from Algeria and North African countries now are living and the communal installations which JDC supports.

In Rome, the Mission will tour a camp at which refugees from Eastern Europe stay temporarily until they can be assigned transportation to Israel. They also will visit an ORT school, the Jewish ghetto and a home for the aged. (ORT receives funds from the United Jewish Appeal through United Jewish Relief Agencies.)

ATHENAGORAS IN ISRAEL

When Patriarch Athenagoras I of Constantinople, spiritual leader of the Greek Orthodox Church, arrived on Jerusalem's Mount of Olives for his first encounter with the Pope, did he remember that this hill was called in Hebrew, Har Hazaytim, before the name was translated into Greek, Latin and Arabic? Did he, the former resident and citizen of the United States, recall his World War II-New York associations with the delegation of the Irgun and his activities on behalf of the renascent Jewish nation on its historic soil?

Those among us who were close to the Emergency Committee to Save the Jewish People of Europe and other groups which the Hebrew underground sponsored in America recall vividly the presence of the majestic figure of this spiritual leader at many a meeting where was discussed both the tragedy of European Jewry and the hope for salvation of its remnants in the historic homeland of the people of Israel.

I remember very well not only his participation in the noble work of rescue and promoting the ideal of Jewish national rebirth in the Holy Land but his utterances of sympathy. If I am not mistaken, the present Patriarch, then the head of the Greek Orthodox Church in the Americas, always pointed to the tragedy of the Armenians in World War I as a frightening example of genocide and as a warning of what might occur if one did not learn this lesson.

From my days in New York, I remember him as a modest, accessible, friendly clergyman, I recall his tall build and his confidence-inspiring look. His church was on the Bowery, near the Jewish Morning Journal. Some of us had the opportunity, from time to time, to speak to him about Jewish problems.

In general, the leaders of the Greek Orthodox Church in North America often expressed an interest in Jewish endeavors. Their main lay supporter, movie mogul Skouras of Hollywood, was, and still is, in close contact with Jewish writers and producers. Many times has he shown his dedication to brotherhood transcending all religions. It is no coincidence that, on the very day Athenagoras met with the Pope in the old city of Jerusalem on the Mount of Olives (where the oldest Jewish cemetery of Jerusalem is located), Skouras was on Mount Zion with the present head of America's Greek Orthodox Church, paying a visit to the Chamber of Horrors, lit six candles in memory of the six million Jewish martyrs.

Athenagoras did not pass the Mandelbaum Gate. He did not enter the part of Jerusalem which is under the jurisdiction of Israel. Was there protocol involved? Did diplomacy play a part? Or did the Patriarch completely forget what he had preached during his years in New York?

Toronto Builder Honored

Samuel Zeldin will be honoured for his "consistently outstanding service" to the United Jewish Appeal Construction Division at a dinner of the Construction Industry on Monday, January 27, at the Park Plaza Hotel.

In announcing the dinner, Joseph Tanenbaum, Construction Division chairman, said "it is appropriate that this important event be a testimonial to a man who has consistently given so much of his time and energy to making our UJA campaign successful".

A special guest speaker at the dinner will be Jacob Ginsburg, director of Joint Distribution Committee operations in Tunisia since the beginning of 1962. JDC receives funds for its rescue, rehabilitation and reconstruction work throughout the world from the United Jewish Appeal of Toronto through United Relief Agencies.

Associate chairmen of the Construction Division are Ernest Bloch, Louis Charles, Harry Davidson, Morris Emer, Harold Green, Sidney Green, Alex Grossman, Harry Gurofsky, Harry Kohl, Albert Latner, Albert Mandelbaum, Harold Nisker, Morton Pascoe, Myer Reitapple, Sidney Silverberg, H. Wayne Tanenbaum, Jacques Vogler, Arthur Weinstock and Mr. Zeldin.

Samuel Zeldin will be cited for philanthropy by Toronto's construction industry.

FAMOUS RABBI TO VISIT TORONTO THIS WEEKEND

Rabbi Yehuda Gershuni, one of the foremost Talmudic authorities on the North American continent, a disciple of the late chief rabbi, Avraham Yosef Kook of the Holy Land, will be the guest of Toronto's Religious Zionists this weekend. The author of a number of classic volumes on halakha and a rosh yeshiva, Rabbi Gershuni will deliver a discourse on Sunday evening, 6:00 p.m., at the dinner of the Torah V'avodah Congregation.

The affair will take place at Toronto's Religious Zionist Center, 86 Vaughan Road, and Rabbi Gershuni will discuss the tractate Psahim. He also will dwell upon the laws of Pessach.

Saturday morning, January 25th, Rabbi Gershuni will deliver the sermon at the downtown Torah V'avodah Synagogue, Markham Street.

Saturday night, the Rabbi will be guest speaker at the Hatzofim banquet at the Religious Zionist Center.

NAZI UNDERGROUND HERE REACTIVATED

New Hate Leaflets In Mail

Her Majesty's Mail again is misused for antisemitic leaflets disseminated by the Nazi underground operating in Toronto, The Canadian Jewish News learned this week.

A number of Torontonians this week received vicious "special bulletins" about Jewish Communists and other alleged characteristics. Some of these leaflets sent to Jews through the Toronto post office are addressed in an insulting manner with obscene words typewritten on the envelope.

The most recent piece of literature printed by the "World Service" states, i.e., that the majority of the Communist leaders and spies "were and are Jews".

A postscript is added, telling the public that "the third and last World War is approaching".

The hooligans also state that the "first two (World Wars) were prepared by international Jewry in order to get full and final control of the world".

The prospects for the near future, according to these "writers", is that millions upon millions of Gentiles will die but ninety-nine per cent of the war promoters will die too. And then "what peace, abundance and prosperity our world will know!"

"Be patient and hopeful, brother, it is coming!" is the concluding paragraph of this vicious, new propaganda.

It seems that once more the post office is helpless in controling the new flood of this hatred propaganda.

SPECIAL BULLETIN
By World Service

We do not say every Jew is a Communist, but that the majority of the Communist leaders and spies were and are Jews. Therefore:

COMMUNISM IS JEWISH.

At present we have no means of bringing the truth to the people, except our leaflets etc. To expose ourselves now would be suicide. We would be smeared or even assassinated as countless other patriots were: The Czar and his family; Count Folke Bernadotte (1st U.N. Secretary); and the British Governor of Palestine — all murdered by Jews; Moise Tshombe, Katangan Christian leader — also martyred!

This is a partial reproduction of one of the anti-semitic leaflets now being mailed through the Toronto Post Office.

AN ANNIVERSARY

THE LUBAVITCH REBBE

BY BEN RAMEN

Jewish history on the American continent is relatively young. Hardly can it compare with the rich and colorful past of European Jewry, which spans over a thousand years. Yet, by a twist of fate, the roles have changed. While in Europe the number of Jews have diminished (and correspondingly their influence and independence), their American brethren have matured quickly and are progressing rapidly to fill as much as possible the gap created by the terrible holocaust.

Interestingly enough, America, the home of an affluent society, has become a source not only of the bread of financial assistance but also of the word of God, of Torah and halakha. Within the last quarter-century, the number of Yeshivot and Day Schools has risen tremendously. It is estimated that there presently are over 75,000 children attending Hebrew parochial schools and rabbinical seminaries. When one compares with the meager hundreds during the thirties, one can grasp the vast change in thought and attitude.

Strangely it was soon after the arrival in the United States of the late Lubavicher Rebbe, Rabbi Joseph Isaac Schneersohn, in the spring of 1940, that Day Schools and Yeshivot began to mushroom.

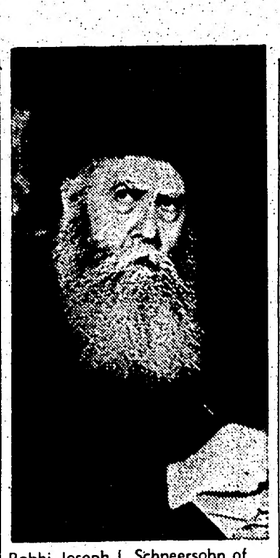
Rabbi Schneersohn was a man whose vision and action were coupled ideally and harmoniously. Merely two days after having escaped the burning walls of the Warsaw Ghetto, he founded a new Lubavitcher Yeshiva and educational network on the grounds of the New World.

In accord with Hasidic traditions, Rabbi Schneersohn saw in his escape the finger of Divine Providence. Often would he emphasize that he did not come to America to save himself. His ten years in America showed that he had come to save others, to help save American Jewry from spiritual decay.

Today when the light of Torah brightens hundreds of Lubavitcher and other institutions of traditional Hebrew education, and when thousands of English-speaking youths hover over the hundreds of thousands of copies of Jewish texts, history books, educational magazines published by the Lubavitcher movement, this is in great measure due to the tireless efforts of the late Lubavitcher Rebbe.

Rabbi Joseph Isaac Schneersohn (whose fourteenth anniversary in passing is being observed in the Torah world) was a living embodiment of the Jewish-traditional ideal; unison of Torah scholarship, saintliness and implementive concern for the welfare of his brethren.

If American Jewry has matured so much so quickly, it is partly because it had the privilege of having the Lubavitcher Rebbe for its mentor.



Rabbi Joseph I. Schneersohn of Lubavitch 5640 - 5710 (1880-1950).

Canada's Camp Moshava

By Dr. Raphael S. Weinberg

My association with Camp Moshava began only last year. After a few days on the premises, I was convinced that the camp catered to the finest "clean cut" element of children that I have ever dealt with.

Moshava is an orthodox camp dedicated to the principles of Torah and Religious Zionism. We do not teach or indoctrinate in our beliefs; we live them and try to set an example. Let me just describe our educational program in all its ramifications.

The camp endeavours to integrate the Hebrew language into its daily routine. All announcements over the Public Address system are made both in Hebrew and in English; all signs are bi-lingual. Our library is well stocked with Hebrew reading material for all levels as well as with many English volumes. Each councellor keeps a record of the books read by his campers and there are special "Am Hasefer" awards given at the end of the camping season.

Services are held at Moshava twice daily. We stress camper participation in the form of Gabaim, Baale Tefillah and Balalei Keriah. There is a twenty minute lecture given in Jewish History and/or Customs and Ceremonies by competent staff-members. Shabbath Services are conducted in a most dignified manner with an abundance of communal singing. The Shabbath experience at Moshava cannot be justly described — it must be experienced. I will only state that the Shabbath spirit is the most pleasant, beneficial and lasting way of education at our command and we fully utilize it — from the beautiful Kabbalath Shabbath service to the hushed mood during the story told at the Seudah Shlishit.

Every morning there is an official study period. We try our best not to give the camper the feeling that he is back in school. We stress the truth that every Jew should set aside time daily for the study of Torah. Everyone from the director down learn Torah. The campers and councellors, who are not teaching, are divided into permanent classes geared to their level and there they study Bible or Talmud.

They are instructed by Madrichim who received teaching assignments prior to their coming to camp and who are subsequently well prepared.

The most important aspect of camp life, and the reason why the camper comes to camp, is the fun element. In Moshava we are extremely cognizant of this. There are five periods of activities per day aside from a club period (for hobbies such as photography, dancing, life-saving etc.) These activities include all land and water sports, arts and crafts and woodwork. There is also a tripping program and outings. Night activities include hay-rides, movies, dramatic presentations, sing songs and campfires, to mention just a few.

Physically, Moshava is a top notch camp. The cabins are well built. The grounds are beautiful, the sport facilities and lake front more than adequate. We have enough indoor recreation space to keep the campers occupied during the inevitable rainy days.

The food at Moshava is tasty and quite sufficient. The meals are planned to be well balanced and to offer a wide variety of dishes. Aside from the three meals a day there is an afternoon snack.

There is a doctor and registered nurse on our staff. A camp mother looks after all the little important, motherly tasks. Our staff is dedicated and we have specialists for music, arts and crafts, woodwork, dramatics and naturally waterfront.

RABBI DR. RAPHAEL S. WEINBERG, New Director of the famous Canadian Camp Moshava.

THE GREAT JEWISH POET AND PARTISAN ABRAHAM SUTZKEVER

we and our rabbis

BY GARY LLOYD GOTTLIEB

The recent conference of Canadian rabbis on the plight of Russian Jewry certainly took a long time in coming. Apparently, "Oppression of the Jews in Russia" as a favorite topic for Saturday morning sermons was just about milked dry.

Nevertheless the rabbinical conference was a step in the right direction. Nothing ever is done by preaching to passive congregations, unless putting them to sleep is considered an accomplishment.

The rabbis decided that Canada's 250,000 Jews will observe a national day for prayer for their brethren in Russia. The date has not yet been set. I sincerely hope that they do not take as long to choose one as they do to set up a conference. We have no time to waste. Every day sees Judaism crumble a little bit more in the Soviet Union.

And if this day of prayer is to be effective, each Jew in Canada should be asked to wear his yarmelka (skull cap). There is no sense in having a national day of prayer if we are only going to give it lip service.

The conference also decided against holding a protest march on the Soviet embassy. The rabbis felt that "excessive protests might do more harm than good." Very profound thinking indeed. Pius XII used the same excuse while 6,000,000 Jews perished in gas chambers and ovens. But at least the Pope's thinking was understandable — there was a shortage of soap.

There is a curious contrast between the Jews of Russia and the Jews of North America. Those in Russia want what they do not have; the Jews in North America have what they do not want.

We have the synagogues. But how many of us ever attend?

We have the Jewish schools. But how many of us continue after Bar Mitzvah?

We have the prayer books. But how many of us read Hebrew?

We have the taletim (prayer shawls) and tefillin (philacteries). But how many of us use them?

We have the matza (unleavened bread). But how many of us observe Passover?

Of course, we have a ready excuse. "In our society it's hard to be a Jew".

I suppose it's easy in Russia.

OUR ANGRY YOUNG MEN

On January 10th, The Canadian Jewish News carried the first of a series of columns by a young student, in which some features of organized Jewish life were criticized. Gary Lloyd Gottlieb, twenty-year-old student at the University of Toronto, in that column and the one which appears in this issue, seems to speak for many angry young men and women in the Canadian Jewish community who feel neglected by the leadership.

The Canadian Jewish News has received a number of letters from university students in which Gottlieb's column is either criticized or lauded.

Many — among writer Gottlieb's colleagues in the universities throughout Canada — disagree with him.

We welcome these young correspondents into the columns of The Canadian Jewish News, their newspaper. The letters will appear beginning with the forthcoming issue, dated January 31st. We also invite other university students to participate in this debate.

We do not necessarily subscribe to any opinions expressed by these correspondents, including Mr. Gottlieb. However, we feel that this is the first time in the history of the North American Jewish press that university students, the future intellectual leaders of our community, debate Jewish issues.

For them, the wonderful, angry young men and women who are perturbed (as they should be) by the issues confronting our generation, The Canadian Jewish News opens wide its columns.

Speaking at the University of Toronto last week, in Hillel House, at a meeting organized by the Student Zionist Organization on the campus, Mr. M. J. Nurenberger, editor of The Canadian Jewish News, told the assembled, i.e.:

"I should like to see rebels of the spirit among you. I should like you to study the problems of our people as we did when we were your age. You are the future. Without you there is no Jewish people.

"The North American Jewish community suffers mainly because of a situation where the intellectual elite seems to ignore the life-and-death struggle of our future. You can correct this."

In this spirit, The Canadian Jewish News again invites students to contribute letters or articles on their sentiments regarding the most vital Jewish problems. Let the angry young men speak up candidly, fearlessly, sometimes excitedly, irreverently — as students should. We shall print them. And the generation of your parents and grandparents will enjoy reading them.

A WELCOME STATEMENT

CANADA AND THE ARAB THREATS

Speaking at a press conference last weekend in Paris, the Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson stated for the record that the Canadian government supports Israel on the issue of the water pipeline from the Sea of Galilee to the Negev.

Anything else would have been sheer cruelty. The position of the Arab dictators fighting the Israelis on the issue of a drink of water to those in the arrid Negev remind one of the biblical story of the Amalekites who refused water to the wanderers.

The entire issue — Israel expressing its readiness to help irrigate the entire Near East and share water with all its neighbors while the self-appointed Arab rulers incite their peoples against those who would provide water for the desert — could be looked upon as a comedy were it not a situation which potentially could lead to the most serious conflict and perhaps to tragedy as well.

En passant, it is important to note that the Soviet Union, while promising the Arab government lip service in their campaign, has joined the West in counseling Cairo caution. Is it too much to hope that this East-West cooperation in the water-for-the-Negev issue may lead eventually to a complete disarmament in the Middle East for the benefit of both Arabs and Jews and other peoples living in this sensitive area?

LE FAIT FRANCAIS

MONTREAL JEWRY AND M. LEVESQUE

Though M. René Levesque, Quebec's Minister of National Resources, last week made use of the platform of a Montreal B'nai B'rith lodge for a policy statement on Quebec's place within the Confederation, his speech, only indirectly, affects the Jewish community. The speech stirred a national uproar as the Minister demanded "a national state" for the French Canadians. However we do not share the opinion that the Jewish group would be more sensitive to such utterances than non-Jewish, non-French citizens of Quebec.

One opinion was that it must have been of little comfort to the Jewish audience to hear Levesque proclaim, "In Quebec we are the majority and this is our home." Why?

We do not believe that Mr. Levesque's speech was meant to be an attack against the non-French Montrealers. We think what Mr. Levesque was trying to tell the B'nai B'rith audience was: "Quebec is on a road where there is hardly any way back." And this Road of Quebec will affect all non-French citizens and residents of the province. There is no Jewish problem involved.

Quite to the contrary. Whereas there are definitely minority cultural interests of those whose background has been Anglo-Saxon for generations — those who consider themselves English by cultural tradition —, the Jewish community of Quebec somehow is placed in a position between the hammer of the French majority and the anvil of the English minority.

What many had hoped to hear from M. Levesque and his ilk is that, while French Canada aspires to be master culturally, in its own house, it would not want to see other groups give up their cultural or religious traditions.

As we see it, the Jewish community of Quebec does not owe any allegiance to any linguistic minority in that province. Its only allegiance, from the Jewish point of view, is towards the ideal of continuing to develop Judaism both as a religion and a culture. And a climate propitious to such development of Judaism is not conditioned upon the language which will be accepted as the tongue of Montreal.

M. Levesque may have been most radical in his demands and too outspoken as to his evaluation of the New Road Quebec has taken. We believe that ultimately reason will prevail and a just solution will be found within the framework of the Confederation which would satisfy the legitimate demands of the French in Quebec, their home. Also we hope that men such as Levesque would clearly define the position of minorities in their province.

We of this newspaper have maintained for years that the Jewish community of Montreal has not yet found the proper rapport to the French community, the majority. Because of historic developments over which the Jewish minority had no control, it was pushed into a position of an appendix to the Protestant English minority.

The new situation calls for courage and for reevaluating properly the French fact in Quebec; also to adapt the Jewish interests, religious and cultural, to the new situation. This means clearly that the Jews of Montreal must realize they are living among a French-speaking people while the French of Montreal and Quebec ought help establish this dialogue for the benefit of both, and for the grandeur of Canada — where all should be free to live according to their conscience, their traditions and their cultural heritage.

● A speech made by the late President Kennedy during his recent trip to Ireland gave Mr. Don Phillips the inspiration to write a song which has won an international competition sponsored by Radio Prague.

The Czech radio station held this competition to mark its 40th anniversary and the rules stated that entries must be based on the theme of friendship and peace between all nations.

Mr. Phillips, who was in Ireland during the late President's visit, remembered the phrase, "We're all one family," and gave his winning entry that title. Prize includes a three-week holiday in Czechoslovakia for two. Mr. Phillips, 44, has accompanied many popular recording stars, including Harry Secombe, Anne Shelton, Susan Maughan and Joan Regan. He lives in Wembley, Middlesex England.

Blarney is flattery laid on so thin you love it.

● Jack Carter, alias Jack Chakrin, says he's not a comedian, but a comedy actor. Whatever that is, he always wants to do something other than what he does.

Carter thinks of himself as round, like Howdy Doody. He sings, dances and has an enormous repertoire of imitations. Raised in Coney Island, where his father ran a candy store and restaurant, he picked up many of his vaudeville bits from wandering through the amusement park and listening to the old, washed-up musical comedy stars entertain. His first acting job was as locker boy for a pool and ocean bathing area. He used to come out and be the barker. He'd stand and bark, "Pool and ocean bathing, wash up and clean like you've never been, hurry, hurry, hurry, inside." While yet in high school, he got a part in "Cyrano de Bergerac", and received an acting scholarship on the basis of his performance. After awhile, he won on the Major Bowes Hour, managing to do 60 imitations on the air. During the war, he served in an entertainment unit. He returned to night-clubs and had his own television variety show for several seasons.

Carter lives in a six-room circular suite on Manhattan's Central Park West with his wife, musical comedy actress Paula Stewart. The Carters entertain frequently. Jack recently turned forty, a fact he'd like to forget. He quips, "Am I happy? Never happy. There's so much unhappiness. I don't want to miss any of it."

● Bobby Breen, Toronto's once - upon - a - time - child-star who is trying to regain his boyhood fame via the New York nightclub beat, also is trying to regain $10,000 worth of jewelry stolen from his apartment. This happened just before he was to go onstage at a New York nightery. A stepson, Ronald, 14, returned, to their apartment in suburban Westchester and discovered it had been ransacked. He called Bobby and Mrs. Breen rushed home. Along with jewels were missing momentoes of Breen's child star days, including cuff links Eddie Cantor gave him. But Bobby was relieved to know his clothes were still at home.

TORONTO MOVES AHEAD

RECENT BEQUEST FOR DISTURBED CHILDREN

SPECIAL BUILDING WILL HOUSE NEW AID CENTER

A bequest of $30,000 from the estate of Rebecca Cohen of Halifax will provide for a new facility for the treatment of emotionally disturbed children, operated by the Jewish Family and Child Service. This was announced this week by Alex G. Fisher and Mark A. Levy, co-chairmen of the Bequest and Endowment Program of Toronto's United Jewish Welfare Fund.

They also stated that the bequest is being held in trust for the JF and CS by Toronto's United Jewish Welfare Fund as part of its Bequest and Endowment Program, and that David B. Goodman, Q.C., in cooperation with his brother Samuel of Halifax, were responsible for obtaining this bequest.

The bequest is earmarked for the purchase of a small house or building in Toronto to be used as a treatment centre for emotionally - disturbed Jewish children. At present there is only one such residential facility under Jewish auspices in Canada, and that is in Montreal.

Stephen E. Berger, president, and Jerome Diamond, executive director of the JF and CS, reported that there is a shortage of resources for helping emotionally-disturbed children who cannot remain in their own homes because the environment there is not conducive to treatment.

"The use of group homes has proved a satisfactory and useful answer to this problem both in Toronto and elsewhere," Mr. Diamond said. The Children's Aid Society of Metropolitan Toronto is operating such a home now, and the Catholic Children's Aid Society is in the process of developing one.

Mr. Diamond emphasized that the home would not be "an orphan asylum or a temporary shelter." He added, "At most, some of the children may come from a home where the parents are separated or divorced, but not necessarily. Probably most will be from homes where both parents are living.

"It will, however, answer the presently urgent need for a place where special care can be given on a temporary basis. The likelihood is that it will do two jobs: (1) Be a halfway house between more intensive treatment and the actual family environment, and (2) Be a sort of decompression chamber from an explosive family setting."

Initial plans call for the establishment of a small, experimental program housing eight adolescent and preadolescent boys and girls. There are now about a dozen children who would be eligible for admission to the home and who are now under treatment by JF and CS, the Toronto Mental Health Clinic and the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital.

Admission will be completely voluntary on the part of both the parents and the child. In addition, the family would have to agree to attend counseling sessions with a JF and CS caseworker inasmuch as the agency's program is a family-directed one, and seeks the cooperation of the entire family and solving emotional and psychological problems of one of its members.

To be considered suitable, the house must be located near public schools and a Hebrew school, have a large yard or adequate play space, be accessible to music and art lessons and in a neighbourhood where the children would be accepted. All these requirements assure the children of not being cut off from society.

Parents will be expected to pay for board, care and treatment. For those unable to pay, costs will be borne by the Children's Aid Society, both of the province and of Metro Toronto, and by JF and CS. Bequests and endowments to the United Jewish Welfare Fund Bequest and Endowment Program for this purpose also will be used.

SERMON OF THE WEEK

THE ETERNAL STRUGGLE

The heavy defeat inflicted on the Amalekites for their cowardly attack on Israel so soon after they had left Egypt, is followed by a solemn declaration of a state of eternal war between God and Amalek. "For a hand is laid on the throne of God; God shall have war with Amalek from generation to generation."

....No tribal vendetta merits such a drastic declaration of divine hostility. Jewish thought sees Amalek here raised to the level of a symbol. The Amalekite people have long disappeared from the face of the earth — preserved in historical memory, paradoxically, only through our annual Bible readings. But the eternal warfare declared by God continues. For Amalek represents the essential example of causeless hatred, violence and aggression that raises its head in every generation, which, whatever name or form it assumes, constitutes a direct assault on God's throne, and the moral values on which He founded His world.

Israel, as a people, is called to take part in this eternal struggle. The undertaking of God, found in our Sidra, "I shall surely blot out the memory of Amalek", is matched, in Deuteronomy, by an injunction to Israel," 'Thou' shalt surely bolt out the memory of Amalek."

From generation to generation, Jews have been in the vanguard of every forward-looking movement that has fought the "battle of the Lord" to achieve liberation for the underprivileged from the oppression, the tyranny and unreasoning hatred, for which Amalek stands as the eternal prototype. But the rabbis have carried the symbolism even further, to reflect the internal struggle that rages within the heart of man himself. They point out that Amalek's attack came immediately after Israel was weakened by inner dissension, doubt and loss of faith; when, despite God's manifest miracles of salvation, they questioned His providence by saying, "Is the Lord in our midst, or not?"

Man created in the image of God has been endowed with the mind and the spirit that enabled him to develop and progress. It was his God — given spirit that lifted him out of slavery, barbarism and ignorance; that leads him now to attack hunger and malnutrition, deprivation and disease. It is the divine gift of intellect that has created our science and technology, rungs in the ladder of human progress.

But there is an Amalek lingering within man that exploits his inner weaknesses, and threatens to stultify his noblest achievements. As we look around us in this world of ours, we realise that conflict and suffering, injustice and cruelty, still constitute a significant area of human existence. Thus, for example, we find great civilised nations, vast in resources, formidable in scientific achievements, who hold the peace and security of our world in their hands, and yet are riven from top to bottom with racial conflicts, causeless hatred and prejudice that divide the hearts of men.

In the eternal war against the Amalek within us, be it the Amalek of human violence and brutality, of racial prejudice, of chauvinism, or fascism or any other that is ranged against the throne of God, there is a Power above and a spirit within that calls us to battle; to fight and work for the day when the Name of God and his ideal for human brotherhood will be firmly established in the undivided heart of man.

ABRAHAM SUTZKEVER • by YAACOV EGIT

On Wednesday, January 29th, Abraham Sutzkever, well known Yiddish poet, will appear at Toronto's Beth Tzedec Synagogue as guest of the Histadrut Campaign which now celebrates its fortieth anniversary.

Russian-born Sutzkever, presently residing in Israel, stems from a rabbinical family which fled, during World War I, to Siberia where he spent his childhood. Later he returned to Vilna, where he received most of his formal education. It was there he wrote his first poems. During the 1930's, he was among the most creative of the Young Vilna groups of writers.

With thousands of Jews, Abraham Sutzkever was isolated in the Vilna Ghetto at the time the city was invaded by the Nazis. Though he continued to write under most difficult conditions, he finally had to relinquish his pen for a gun. With his wife and others, he succeeded in breaking through the walls of the Ghetto. The group fled into the Vilna forests, carrying along many historic documents which they had managed to hide from the Nazi vandals. There they joined the Jewish partisan unit, Revenge, and fought against the Nazis.

Sutzkever did not give up the pen for long. In September, 1943, at the height of the war and with the help of partisan groups in the forests, his poems reached the Jewish writers in Moscow.

Peretz Markish arranged a Sutzkever evening when the latter's poems were read in Yiddish and translated into Russian. His poem, Kol Nidrei, was especially touching. Elya Ehrenburg extolled Sutzkever. Shlome Michoels made every effort to save him. (Some time later, Markish and Michoels became victims of the Stalin purge.)

Through the medium of the Moscow radio, Sutzkever was the first to announce to the world the truth about the fate of the Jews under German occupation. Afterwards he was the most important Jewish witness at the Nuremberg Trials. It was his evidence which exposed to the world the horrors perpetrated by the Nazis upon the Jewish people.

After the war, Sutzkever settled in Israel — the hard way. In order to reach the Promised Land, he joined others, this time in the fight against the British mandatory power in Palestine.

Many of his later works are based on his harrowing experiences upon the seas. Of these the poet relates:

"We sailed in a broken down Greek boat, The Patrica. The stormy waves tossed the little boat. Life hung on a thread and our fate was in the hands of the raging sea. I stood at the end of the boat, but not for a minute did I regret being there. Pernaps, thought I, I wasn't worthy to enter Eretz Yisrael. But suddenly the skies cleared. My thoughts and spirit were transported to thoughts of Yehuda Halevi. Inspired by that great poet, I wrote my poem on that sea-tossed boat: Yehuda Halevi, and said to the storm, 'Here is my poem.'"

In 1946, Sutzkever was the only writer who accompanied the Israel Defense Forces on their historic march to Mount Sinai. Later he wrote the poem, Sinai, the most beautiful hymn ever penned about the holy mountain.

Abraham Sutzkever, now the editor of the Yiddish quarterly, Die Goldene Keit, which he also founded and which now is the most important Yiddish literary journal in the world, has never forgotten the atrocities of the past; nor has he forgotten the traditions and heritage of East European Jewry.

In his poems, Sutzkever has created the synthesis of the heroism of the Jews in the Ghetto and the partisans in the forests, along with the heroism of the Israeli army. In great literary form, he has expressed the deep pain of our destruction and the great joy and happiness in the creation of our homeland. His Secret City, and other works, give expression to the most crucial times ever encountered in Jewish history.

Abraham Sutzkever's works have been translated into thirty languages: English, French, Japanese, Danish, Polish, Spanish, as well as many others. The UNESCO has published a translation of his lyric poem, Siberia, with illustrations by the renowned painter, Marc Chagall.

FROM THE PRESS

Should Martin Have Protested?

OTTAWA (CJN) — The influential Ottawa French daily, Le Droit, published an editorial signed by Mr. Willie Chevalier criticizing Secretary Paul Martin's "excessive timidity" vis-a-vis Russia.

Discussing the address made by the Secretary of State for External Affairs at the all-Canadian rabbinic conference in the capital, the French daily believes that Mr. Martin should have been more outspoken in condemning Soviet antisemitism.

Le Droit especially resents Mr. Martin's statement (the full text of which was printed last week in The Canadian Jewish News) for his allegation that we would not gain much — nor would the Russian Jews — were we to speak up more candidly on this issue.

No matter how repugnant, Soviet Russia is not Hitler Germany and one cannot compare the position of Mr. Martin to that of Pius XII during World War II, the daily continues.

Also, the editorial stresses, Canada is not a big power and does not have to follow the discretion of the United States, Britain or France, especially when we are supplying wheat to the Soviet Union. We can always put conditions to our sales, Le Droit concludes.

At the same time, the French newspaper sees in the Soviet Russian tactics against the cultural interests of the Jewish minority there some similarities to the situation of French Canadians in some areas in Canada.

Great Success

Toronto Women's Campaign

The Women's Division campaign in behalf of the 1964 United Jewish Appeal of Toronto was launched with a Crown Gifts luncheon last week that was "successful in every way," according to Mrs. John R. Devor, Women's Division chairman.

Mrs. Devor paid tribute to Mrs. Alfred C. Cowan, chairman of Crown Gifts and hostess of the luncheon, for her "exquisite taste" in the choice of the setting and menu. Mrs. Burt Siris of Rye, N.Y., the guest speaker, said that as a "connoisseur of UJA luncheons" she could honestly say that she had "never dined so well and in such comfortable surroundings."

Mrs. Devor also expressed her gratitude to Mrs. David Eisen, Mrs. Gershon Gordon and Mrs. Mildred Sobol for their help in the arrangements.

Mrs. Siris, a former chairman of the Women's Division of the Greater New York UJA, told the audience of 35 women — one of the best turnouts ever for a Crown Gifts function — that this year "it's the same old story for UJA." She added, "the cast of characters is different from past years, but the script has not changed — Jews are still running.

"Although there is not money enough to accomplish all the necessary tasks, Mrs. Siris asserted, Israel "won't stop receiving people and bringing them in, because the one resource it can count on are the brains and guts of its people."

Mrs. Siris, who has visited Israel four times, also spoke of the Jordan River water diversion project, and called it "vital to Israel's future." She recalled the Johnson Plan, which had been put forward 10 years ago by the United States, and under which Jordan would have obtained the bulk of the water. When Syria vetoed the plan, however, Israel decide to go ahead with its own water project, "secretly and at great expense."

"Now that it is finished, Israel is determined to defend it and protect it at all costs," she said.

Head table guests included Mrs. Ben Okun and Mrs. Harry Hershoran, former chairmen of Crown Gifts; and Mrs. Max Tanenbaum and Mrs. Mark A. Levy, former Women's Division chairmen.

A LITTLE BIT OF MUSIC

BY RUTHIE

Remember last time when I discussed status symbol? Well, another mark of distinction was the little "ole pianny'.

I'll never forget my girlfriend Mitzi's look of awe when she found out I took piano lessons. That was already at a time when radio became the popular means of entertainment. Cranking a victorola was considered work, so imagine what practising upon an instrument meant. And when she saw nothing less than a baby grand in our home, well!

My memory goes back vaguely to when practically every house had a player piano — pianola —, the kind that held a music roll on top and just pedaling with your feet made melody. But that was a teaser. Then and there every mama decided that her offspring would really play — not just make with the feet. And that's where I came in.

I wasn't asked. I wasn't consulted. One day a music teacher was introduced to me, and that was that.

This first teacher was a smart cookie. He wasn't particularly interested in exercises, sonatinas, theory. He stressed the songs mama liked to hear. And if I could play them, his job was assured. It wasn't like that in my case only. From every apartment you heard the same songs.

What were mama's favorites? Her heart melted if you played, "Eli, Eli." And if you carried on with the melody long enough for her to be able to chime in, she knew papa's money wasn't wasted.

A big hit was Belle Baker's rendition of, "My Yiddishe Mama." When Belle sang the English version, every mother memorized it.

My mother held this song as a switch over our heads.

If we weren't cooperative, she'd start lamenting, "My Yiddishe mama, I need her more than ever now." Then louder, "My Yiddishe mama, I'd love to kiss her wrinkled brow."

By that time, we sobered up. Still she ignored us and continued plaintively, "I'd love to hold her hands once more, as in days gone by. And say I'm sorry for all the things I did to make her cry."

That was the climax. "O'kay," we blubbered, "you win."

Just for variety, another of her stand-bys was Sophie Tucker's, "Some of These Days." All she had to do was wail, "Some of these days, you're gonna miss me, honey," and she got what she wanted out of us. She didn't need college to learn psychology.

Those were good days for us kids.

Meanwhile Yiddish songs with a real niggun (melody and krekhs (sigh) have disappeared the way of all things. The closest you come to anything with an old fashioned flavor is, "Who Stole the Kishka?" This year the latest number is, "Slice the Meatball."

Will a psychologist please explain this sudden carniverous tendency in the present generation?

IN MONTREAL

EL-AL WINS UNIVERSAL APPROVAL FOR RATES

At a meeting held in Montreal last week, the Israeli Airlines (El Al) won a highly important concession. This occurred when the conference of the International Air Transport Authority discussed the special tourist promotion-rate group flights from New York to Lydda, Israel.

The Montreal conference unanimously approved the El Al special rate for these flights ($535 U.S. currency, New York - Lydda and return, with two stopovers en route).

The El Al representative who participated at the meeting declared that this special rate, which had been introduced by his company in '62 following approval by IATA, later encountered opposition from Pan American.

This approval of El Al commercial practices by the IATA constitutes a great victory for the Israeli airlines which expects to sell this year more flight seats than ever.

IN RUSSIA:

FORTY PERCENT INTERMARRIAGE

LONDON, (JCNS) — Kharkov and Odessa are reported to be the two main cities in the U.S.S.R. where the number of mixed marriages has reached the highest level. According to an estimate based on interviews with leading personalities interested in Jewish affairs in the two cities, between 30 and 40 per cent of all marriages by Jews are mixed. It is more common for Jewish boys to marry Russian girls than vice-versa.

Compared with similar statistics in 1927, the number of mixed marriages has doubled during the last 25 years. It was 16.4 per cent in 1927, when the Jewish populations of Kharkov and Odessa were 81,000 and 153,000 respectively. Today their estimated Jewish populations are the same.

In 1927, Kharkov still had seven synagogues and five rabbis, and Odessa 12 synagogues and nine rabbis. Today Kharkov has only one prayer-house and no rabbi, while Odessa has one synagogue, two prayer-houses and only one rabbi.

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, will not proceed to Russia from Poland.

NOT GOING TO RUSSIA

TEL AVIV, (JCNS) — Dr. Nahum Goldmann, president of the World Zionist Organisation and of the World Jewish Congress, arrived in Israel for a visit of several days.

He denied press reports that he is to visit Moscow later, although he confirmed that he would visit Poland in April as an official guest. There had been soundings about his visiting Moscow at one time, but nothing had happened about them.

Dr. Goldmann left for Bonn on Sunday to conduct talks with the West German authorities on reparations for victims of Nazism.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

MARBLE CHEESE CAKE

- 1 cup (6 oz. package) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons flour
- 1½ Cups sugar
- dash of salt
- ¼ teaspoon double-acting baking powder
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 3 packages (8 oz. each) cream cheese
- 6 eggs, separated
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup heavy cream

Partly melt chocolate in saucepan over very low heat. Remove from heat and stir until completely melted and smooth. Into a small bowl put ¾ cup of the flour, ¼ cup of the sugar, salt and baking powder. With a pastry blender, cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add ¼ cup of the melted chocolate; blend thoroughly. Press mixture firmly into bottom of a 9-inch spring-form pan. Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven 10 minutes. Remove from oven (leave heat on) and place on rack to cool. Meanwhile, beat cream cheese until soft. Gradually beat in remaining sugar until fluffy. Beat in egg yolks. Stir in remaining flour, the lemon rind and juice, and vanilla. Beat egg whites until they hold soft peaks; beat cream until stiff. Top cream cheese mixture with beaten egg whites and whipped cream. Gently fold in until completely blended. Remove 2 cups of this mixture and fold into remaining melted chocolate. Pour half the plain mixture into cooled crust. Top with spoonfuls of half the chocolate mixture. Repeat, using remainder of both mixtures. Draw a knife through the mixture in curves to create a marbled effect. Place cheesecake in oven. Reduce temperature to slow (325 degrees). Bake 1 hour. Turn off heat. Let cheesecake remain in closed oven 1 hour longer. Remove from oven. Cool 2 to 3 hours. Using a knife, carefully loosen cheesecake from sides of pan; remove sides. Makes 12 to 16 servings.

NOTE: Marble Cheesecake may be stored in the freezer for five days; six hours will be needed for defrosting the whole cake.

MAY THE LORD BLESS YOU FROM ZION AND YOU SHALL SEE THE HAPPINESS OF JERUSALEM ALL THE DAYS OF YOUR LIFE!

On behalf of the Canadian Committee-in-Formation of the new B'nai Yeshiva Housing Project in the Holy City, I have the honor to extend our heartfelt thanks to the well known Hamilton community leader and philanthropist, Mr. Sam Netkin, who has generously contributed $3,000 towards the building of more homes for Talmiday Hahamim and Yeshiva students who dedicate their lives to the study of the Holy Torah.

MR. NETKIN AND HIS ILK WHO ARE HELPING THE DESTITUTE B'NAI TORAH IN THE HOLY LAND TO OBTAIN MUCH NEEDED HOUSING FOR THEIR LARGE FAMILIES AID IN STRENGTHENING THE ETERNAL SPIRIT OF OUR PEOPLE.

We are confident that many other Canadians will emulate this noble example for the sake of Torah and Zion.

The Talmiday Hahamim of Jerusalem extend to them their blessings and cordial thanks.

Rabbi Zvi Elimelech Goldman, executive director of the Housing Project for Talmudic Scholars in the Holy City, accepts with thanks the check for $3,000 from Mr. Sam Nefkin, well known Hamilton philanthropist.

Theatre In Toronto

Musical • Spectacle •

by Barbara I. Pearl

This week O'Keefe Center is home to Alexander Cohen's and Jack Hylton's presentation of Rugantino, Italy's newest musical sensation. And it may be ours, since we are blase enough by now to welcome anything different.

Rugantino is advertised as a "musical spectacle." Musical? Not enough to emphasize the point. Spectacle? A hearty yes. Different? In the sense that, as an Italian-language production, it has copied from foreign films providing English titles.

Rugantino is the story of a nineteenth century scoundrel who is irresistible to women. His escapades would make Boccaccio blush.

Nino Manfredi, as Rugantino, entertains with never a dull moment. He is punished by Papal Law for a minor indiscretion; he tries to seduce Rosetta (Ornella Vanoni), with whom he later falls in love; he succeeds in passing off his mistress, Eusebia (Bice Valori), as his sister; he boasts of his conquests; he finally is beheaded for a crime he did not commit.

Aldo Fabrizi in the role of Mastro Titta—chief executioner and deserted spouse—sparkles with comedy. Apparently there is an Alfred P. Doolittle in every language.

The action packed shenanigans make up for the lack of music which is unapparent save for a lilting melody or two.

Impressive are Giulio Coltellacci's sceneries, in themselves fascinating by their quick changes on revolving tracks.

MIRIAM JACOBI young Yemenite singer from Israel, noted for her interpretations of Yemenite, Hassidic and folk songs, will appear at Toronto's A. Sutzkever evening, Wednesday January 29, at the Betz Tzedec Shul.

Nahum Nardi, Israeli composer-pianist, will be at the piano.

TORONTO THEATRE HI-LIGHTS

● The Marigold Charlesworth-Jean Roberts fantastic. The Fantasticks, enters its fourth month at the Red Barn, Central Library Theater.

● Rugantino, story of a nineteenth century knave, produced in its original Italian version, plays at O'Keefe Centre till February 1st. An innovation is the use of English sub-titles.

● Young People's Concert at O'Keefe Centre tomorrow morning, 11:00 a.m., features the woodwind section.

GUITARIST — Andres Segovia, who appears at Massey Hall tomorrow evening, 8:30 p.m., in a classical recital of guitar music.

Heard will be selections by Mozart, Brahms, Prokofiev, McCauley, Milhaud, Ibert, Luigini and McCauley.

Pictures of the week

Torontonians To Honor Denmark

A citation to honour Denmark for the heroic rescue of Danish Jewry from the Nazi holocaust in October, 1943, will be presented to Consul R. N. Bryson and Mrs. Bryson at the Advance Gifts cocktail reception sponsored by the Women's Division, 1964 United Jewish Appeal of Toronto.

The reception will take place on Tuesday, February 4, at 8:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Morris B. Kaufman, 7 Ava Crescent. Woolf Perry, deputy chairman of the world Keren Hayesod (United Israel Appeal) will be guest speaker.

Mrs. Kaufman and Mrs. Noel D. Zeldin are co-chairmen of Advance Gifts. Mrs. John R. Devor is chairman of Women's Division. Mrs. John Van Der Hout is heading a special team of pacesetters for the event.

ART NOTES

● Sculptor Chaim Gross, 59, is still at the height of his powers. He is a gentle and compassionate man who speaks through sculpture of joyous mothers and daughters, dancers and acrobats who crowd his New York studio, along with tragic memorials to his sister and her children who were destroyed by the Nazis. Most of his students (he teaches at the Educational Alliance and at the New School) are business people, housewives, doctors, teachers who consider sculpting a serious hobby.

Gross came to America in 1921 at the age of 17. Born in Galicia, Austria, son of a lumber merchant, his parents were killed by Cossack occupation troops during World War I. He lived a hand-to-mouth refugee existence. He became interested in art after getting a job as a jeweler's apprentice. Once he left a note saying good-bye to his friends and hitchhiked to Atlantic City for a dishwasher's job. His friends thought he was dead and reported him to the police who went looking through the morgue. Some other friends broke into his little room and sold a carving to a "wealthy" patron for $60. This man wanted to atone for neglecting him while he was "alive". When Chaim finally showed up, a friend said, "Chaim, you better commit suicide — someone finally bought one of your statues!"

Gross has received many awards. He is also a watercolorist. He lives with his wife, Renee, in an apartment above his Washington Square studio. Their son Yudie is an engineer for the city; daughter Mimi is a painter. Gross says, "Without a good wife — you're nothing. A good wife is half the work done".

ATTENDING the dinner given by the Barristers Group of Toronto's United Jewish Appeal last week were four Queen's Counsel. Left to right: John K. Wahl; Jack Friedman, Elliot L. Marrus; and David Peters. The dinner was attended by more than 100 lawyers who pledged a record amount for the 1964 campaign.

Parental Nagging

DR. ROSE N. FRANZBLAU

QUESTION: My daughter is a sophomore at a small, but expensive college, and living at home. Her high school average was achieved with the help of tutors.

In her junior year, since her social life took preference over high school work, I stopped the tutors. She spent that summer repeating two courses. We only agreed to this college which accepted her if she applied herself and passed. In her second term, she got a D in a very important course.

Even though she is unusually happy and loves everything at this college should we take her out or should we as parents close our eyes and just hope?

Lately, we find her going back to the old high school pattern. My husband fears that if we keep her out of college to teach her a lesson for even one term, she may never go back. She should know what a terrific sacrifice we are making for her schooling. I work to supplement our income.

She is very attractive, with the highest of morals, and unusually talented. Because of her talents in voice and speech, she is called upon to do extracurricular work for the school. She has just a normal I.Q.

ANSWER: You and your husband are still supervising and directing your daughter as if she were a 10-year-old youngster. Even worse, you are using the threats of deprivation and punishment as a motivation for learning. While it is a fact that you have to work fulltime to enable your daughter to attend college, to use this to make her feel guilty will not make her a better or more conscientious student.

Actually, in such situations, the youngster feels that her parents make the sacrifices to get what they want, rather than to give her what she wants. She feels the parents want their child to be a college graduate to make up for their lack of schooling. When the college degree is finally obtained, it becomes more an ornament for the parents than a testimonial of the youngster's ability and achievements.

The basic motivation for academic achievement should be the desire to learn and satisfy one's curiosity. But when a youngster is hovered over and made to feel that without her parent's extra attention and help, she would get nowhere, the desire to learn languishes and is superseded by the fear of being left alone without the parents to depend on.

Such youngsters always fail to live up to their potential. Sometimes, the parents refuse to face the fact that a child is not capable of doing superior work, and conclude that her "just fair" marks are the result of a lack of conscientiousness and application.

Her social adjustment outside of school and her status as a responsible citizen who works for causes must not be overlooked or underestimated. The most important lesson you have to teach her (it is long past due) is that you believe in her. When you get this lesson across and she feels that you really mean it, she will begin to function on the level of which she is capable.
